Emergency Has Passed And Balancing Move Is In Order, He Says

(BULLETIN)

WASHINGTON, July 8.—The time has come to move toward balancing the federal budget, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., told the house ways and means committee today.

He appeared as the first witness in the committee hearings on the president's so-called "share-the-wealth" tax program.

While Morgenthau made no specific recommendations for inheritance and gift taxes, graduated corporation taxes, and higher individual income taxes, to carry out the president's message, he submitted estimates of yields based upon tentative schedules of the house committee.

Primary Interest Revenue

He told the committee that the treasury's primary interest is revenue, and not affecting social changes, and warned that any tax program must avoid undesirable social consequences.

Morgenthau's recommendation that a start be made toward balancing the budget apparently marked a new step in the administration's program, he said.

"There are times of emergency when the treasury must finance expenditures in excess of income borrowing which increases the public debt. But the national welfare de-

PA NEW OBSERVES

New fence on hill leading down to the harbor intersection on New Bedford road, is being painted. Airplanes hold a strong grip on the interest of old and young, judging from the crowds that gather at New Castle airport Sundays and holidays. Men at the swimming beaches have gone in for sun-tan in a big way, most of them having abandoned jerseys completely. These new street-name signs are certainly appreciated. They had been needed a long time.

Stop signs at city street intersections are being repainted, and are being done in white and black instead of yellow and black. It is quite an improvement.

The Harbor Bridge swimming hole on the Shenango river, had a great appeal yesterday, a large crowd gathering at the locality to cool off.

Candidates placards are beginning to be plastered on the trees and other parts of the pretty Western Pennsylvania scenery. A New note, before the campaign will be advanced the countryside will be covered with these signs, unless a halt is called in the program that is setting under way.

Pa New always wondered why the sign along the highway announcing Portersville is a mile down the Ellwood City-Portersville road from the intersection with the Perry highway.

The garden plots just below the Seventh ward in the acreage allotted by the city, are being well taken

New Castle Heat Wave Doesn't Bother These Two; Just Back From Africa

At least two people in New Castle didn't notice the heat Saturday. They were Rev. and Mrs. Arthur I. Seymour, missionaries to French Equatorial Africa who have just returned for a sabbatical year in the United States. They are stationed at Port Archambault, in almost the exact center of the African continent. They are guests of Mrs. Seymour's father, H. F. Thompson, 113 South Crawford avenue.

"For a time we were stationed in the Sahara desert," said Mrs. Seymour, "and it gets quite warm there. It's plenty warm down where we are, south of the desert now and the days go up to 125 and 130. We don't get sunburned because we protect our faces with cork helmets."

Lions roam the jungles near the station served by Rev. and Mrs. Seymour and at night they can often be heard roaring. Leopards come almost into the village. The

(International News Service)
HARRISBURG, July 8.—Division superintendents for the Works Progress Administration in Pennsylvania will be named late this week, Administrator Edward N. Jones announced today.

The state has been divided into 16 districts to give the new program local autonomy. The division superintendents will supersede the present local works division setup which has been taken over by the WPA.

The successor to W. Bruce Caldwell, LWD director for the Lawrence-Mercer-Butler area, who resigned, will be the division superintendent named in the district comprising those counties.

CLEVELAND, O., July 8.—Some 5,000 Republicans from six states "talked things over" here today at the opening session of a two-day rally ballyhooed by its sponsors as an event that will go down in history, and criticized by its foes as a political sideshow.

Michigan, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee and Ohio were represented at the meeting called by former State Senator George H. Bender, Cleveland, Ohio Republican State Chairman Ed Schorr, who criticized Bender for not consulting the state committee, was not in attendance.

Fletcher Approves

The conference, nevertheless, had the "full approbation" of Henry P. Fletcher, Republican national chairman. Bender displayed a telegram from Fletcher saying "no one was authorized to say I am in anyway hostile to the Cleveland meeting; I give it my full approbation."

Bender conceived the rally while attending the "grass roots" Republican conference in Springfield, Ill. recently. No presidential candidates were invited and discussions

KITTANNING, Pa., July 8.—Whirlwind down a long steep grade when the brakes of a carnival truck, failed, three men were dead today, while two others were in a critical condition in Butler hospital. The accident occurred on a hill leading into East Brady.

The dead were W. W. Mohr, 35, Pittsburgh; Henry "Dutch" Bartell, 62, Milwaukee, Wis., concessionaire; Court Blanton, 20, Rockhill, S. C. The injured are J. R. Wilson, 20, driver of the truck, Rockhill, S. C. and Raymond Smith, 20, Milford, N. Y.

Washington, Pa., bound from Rimmersburg, the truck shot over a sloping embankment, 150 feet across a field and ploughed into the Pennsylvania railroad tracks. The impact sent the trailer crashing into the truck, smashing both vehicles.

Police estimated descent of the truck in which Mohr was riding with Wilson, at 80 miles an hour. Bartell and Smith were riding the trailer.

"As the water reaches Pennsylvania it will be considerably flattened out and not high enough to cause any serious damage."

Hosmer said the department had received no report of any dams giving way or weakening in this state and that no serious threats existed in the upper Susquehanna Valley where the rainfall also was heavy.

In lively fashion the Pennsylvania delegation of the six state "grass roots" convention opening in Cleveland today got under way Sunday night with a caucus in the Empire room of the Cleveland Hotel. Four people were treated for injuries in the Jameson Memorial hospital, Sunday evening at 6 o'clock, for injuries received when the car in which they were riding was forced into the ditch on Route 19, near Harlansburg.

Carl Reuter, aged 50, of Superior avenue, Pittsburgh, received lacerations of the face, head, hands and arms, when he is said to have been hurled through the windshield, when the car of Anthony Russo, aged 35, of 3328 Ward street, Pittsburgh, was forced to take to the ditch to avoid colliding with another car. The car immediately stopped suddenly, causing Russo to swerve from the road.

Russo, his wife, Marie, aged 31; and son, Louis, aged 13, were treated for cuts about the face and head, but were able to leave the hospital immediately afterwards.

SANTA MONICA, Cal., July 8.—How are some of these sporting writers going to ever get through apologizing for the things they said about Helen Wills' gameness. They didn't think she could have been hurt that day in '33, for she never died on the court.

Two long years of hearing jibes at her sportsmanship, and nursing herself back to health, just to show 'em, is a long time. And don't forget that other Helen. She put up a great fight and it was tough for her to lose. We can sure swell up and be mighty proud of both of 'em. And they are even, they both met the queen and king.

And say, I bet if the truth was known those two girls don't hate each other any worse than any other two star rival athletes in any line.

John D. Rockefeller Is 96 Years Old Today

LAKEWOOD, N. J., July 8.—John D. Rockefeller, who lived through half the history of America to become the nation's greatest success story—is 96 years old today. He celebrated the occasion quietly but happily, for he is within four years of the goal he has set his heart upon—a 100th birthday.

"I am in good health," he said, "and I expect to live to be a hundred."

No Deviation From Rules

He awoke at 7 a. m. as he has "early to bed and early to rise" as one of his chief rules of living, and his valet dressed him. Promptly at 8 he breakfasted and read a little from the Bible and received the good wishes of his immediate family, but beyond these, there was no slight deviation from the strict schedule of life that the old millionaire has built up for the preservation of his failing strength.

Rockefeller is a complete recluse now. Age has forced him to give up his two greatest pleasures, churchoing and golf playing. It is more than a year since the last time "Mr. John" walked up the aisle of the First Baptist church in Lakewood to hear the sermon, and it is sweated a golf ball about the private course on his estate.

Today he stayed hidden in his heavily guarded estate.

America counted a death toll rapidly nearing the 100 mark today following one of the most fatal motor holiday periods in recent months. Grade crossing crashes, head-on collisions, overturning of speeding cars on curves all contributed to the unusually high death toll.

Five persons, four women and a man, plunged to their death when an automobile hurtled over a 35-foot cliff into the Pacific ocean at San Diego, Cal.

A grade crossing train-auto crash near Chesterton, Ind., brought death to five youthful merry-makers re-

Five baseball fans returning from a rural neighborhood game in Missouri suffered a similar fate when their automobile was struck at a grade crossing by a Frisco motor train.

TO AIR PRESIDENT'S PROGRAM

Open Hearings On Tax Plans

Critical Legislative Battle Is Entered By Administration This Week

MORGENTHAU IS FIRST WITNESS

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 8.—The administration entered on one of its most critical legislative battles today as the house ways and means committee opened hearings on the president's tax program.

While Democratic leaders hoped to speedily enact a tax program and make adjustment possible before September 1, there was a possibility of a bitter battle developing which may drag the session into the fall months.

Morganthau Witness.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morganthau was slated to be the first witness. Congressional leaders said, however, that they did not expect him to submit definite rate schedules to carry out the president's program.

The treasury was to furnish the committee with estimates of revenue to be raised by several tentative schedules of inheritance and gift taxes, income taxes and graduated corporation taxes.

Republican members, however, planned to demand that the treasury itself lay down rates to carry out the program, asserting that it is the historic duty of the treasury to do so.

The tentative rate schedules submitted to the treasury by the ways and means taxation sub-committee were designed to raise from $300,000,000 to $500,000,000 a year.

While the house members talked of beginning inheritance taxes at $50,000 and boosting income taxes on incomes above $50,000 to $100,000, Senator LaFollette (R) of Wisconsin had served formal notice that he will present a program boosting income taxes along the line.

The LaFollette program would cut exemptions for married persons from $2,500 to $2,000 and single persons from $1,000 to $800.

its purpose the expanding of the committees and the election of committees from the floor.

Mrs. Hart Named

After considerable wrangling it was finally agreed to name three women as auxiliary members to the committee, but seven were nominated and all seven were named to sit on the committee. One of the seven, Mrs. Carl S. Hart is a New Castle woman, residing at 142 Garfield avenue.

Carroll then attempted to get the caucus to adjourn subject to the call of the chairman but the caucus would have none of it. It was finally decided to adjourn until 8:30 this morning, with the understanding that all resolutions must be passed upon by the caucus as a whole before being presented to the floor today.

The six state conference got under way in the auditorium this morning at ten o'clock, with the second session tonight at 8. The closing session will be on Tuesday morning at ten o'clock. In addition to Pennsylvania the following states are represented: Ohio, Michigan, Kentucky and Tennessee.

were supposed to be confined to the general welfare of the party.

Battle cry for the meeting was sounded by Bender. In an address headlining today's session, he called upon the delegates to work together "in a cause destined to transcend and break traditional party lines."

"No Gag Rule"

Bender promised that "no gag rule will mar this conference," and events to date indicated the delegates took him at his word.

Even before the conference got under way officially, the Pennsylvania contingent staged its own private battle between the "old guard" of the party and a faction opposed to it.

Events started shortly after a special train rolled into Cleveland last night bearing a delegation of nearly 200. Those on the train found they had been preceded by members of the "old guard" in Pennsylvania—the group for which the conference, according to its sponsors, was not intended.

The Pennsylvanians immediately were called into caucus, and a boisterous meeting ensued. They revolted chiefly against the selection of committee members, who they charged were hand-picked. The chief caucus action was enlargement of the state's representation in the important resolutions committee from five to 12, with women selected for the seven new posts.

Cries from the floor made it a good, old-fashioned political meeting. One delegate voiced vigorously a protest against the "old steamroller," and another shouted out that "we demand the right to select the committees representing us."

In honor of his birthday, however, the oil magnate will be allowed to choose whatever food he likes for his dinner, instead of his regular diet menu. Usually Rockefeller avoids himself on this annual privilege with a show of pleasure, but he never selects fancy dishes. Simplicity and moderation have been the keynotes of his existence for many years and he believes in them so firmly that he is loathe to relinquish them even for a day.

The old man with the dimples, who can buy anything he wants in the world, gets his keenest enjoyment racing with life. Life is the one pleasure left to him, and he makes it his career.

He has seen wars, boom times, and world panics; he has watched through almost a century of history and he has made history himself.

Into his memory have slipped great world events—the Civil War—the assassination of Lincoln—the Johnstown flood—the Russian-Turkish War of 1877—the Panic of 1893—the Spanish-American War—the building of the Panama Canal—Revolution—the Wall Street crash. Rockefeller learned to live simply in the midst of great wealth, and to this he attributes his success and his longevity. He believes in copy-book axioms and lives according to them. He believes "a penny saved is a penny earned" and he began his custom of giving away dimes to encourage thrift in others.

New Castle is well prepared to take care of the auto tourists that come through this section. In addition to the hotels, more and more private homes are being announced as "Homes For Tourists," along the important highways through the city and county.

In New England.

Vacationers and week-end motorists seeking succor from the heat wave along the cool New England highways suffered a casualty list of seven deaths in the Atlantic coast area from Connecticut northward, while still farther north a train automobile crash brought death to four French-Canadians at Valleyfield, Que. In the latter crash, a seven-months-old baby in the car escaped practically unscathed.

A head-on truck collision near Toledo, O., resulted in deaths of five Detroit men, all occupants of the automobile, while another collision near Cincinnati contributed three men and a girl to the swelling death toll.

Texas reported four automobile deaths, North Carolina three and Georgia one.

Other auto deaths reported in the middle west included three in Michigan, one in nearby Ontario, one in Iowa and one each for Lancaster, Youngstown and Cleveland, O.

When they arrived at Greenfield, Powell was said to have struck Kudelko and knocked him to the ground. He then tried to break into the residence of Mrs. Mary Chapin, and being foiled in this attempt, kicked in the door of the store of P. E. Bartholomew.

Mrs. Chapin, aroused by the noise, called state police, and Patrolmen James Snyder and Leo Jackson responded. They were joined by citizens of Greenfield, when they found Kudelko lying in the road in an unconscious condition.

Powell was finally discovered hiding behind Bartholomew's store, and after a terrific struggle, was taken into custody by the state policemen and citizens.

The officers later went to the scene of the accident and found Darrell Smith of R. D. No. 2, West Middlesex, and Clara Mae Barr and Helen Ritter of Hubbard, O., in the machine. They were taken to the Sharon hospital, where they were treated for minor bruises and lacerations received when Powell's car crashed.

Kudelko was the father of Michael Kudelko, aged 18, whose car is said to have struck and killed Lawrence Donner, aged 4, of Lackawanna township, on the evening of July 3, and who is being held by Mercer county authorities pending a coroner's inquest.

A daughter, Miss Mary Kudelko, is said to reside in this city, where she is employed.

Alice Ferris of Interlachen drowned when her car was washed from Elmira-Ithaca highway near Buttermilk Falls.

Unidentified woman drowned when her automobile was washed from Floral avenue extension, near Ithaca. Her husband was rescued.

Jacob Narozny, 58, of Pitcher, Chenango county, killed by a bolt of lightning.

Passengers In Danger

Scores of passengers, many of them New Yorkers, on the Black Diamond Express, cracked Lehigh Central train from Buffalo to New York, were narrowly saved from a disastrous wreck four miles out of Ithaca.

A quarter of a mile of tracks was washed away as the train was roaring toward Ithaca in the darkness early this morning. The gap was located by section crews and the train flagged to a halt at 3:30 a. m. just 500 yards from disaster. The train was still marooned there late today.

Mayor Louis P. Smith of Ithaca mobilized police, firemen, CCC workers and every available volunteer to assist in rescuing work. The Red Cross was arranging to send food, clothing and medical supplies to stricken areas. Railroads were rushing repair crews into a score of localities to repair destroyed bridges and tracks.

Sixty rescued children and more than 150 injured persons were taken to the R. O. T. C. drill hall at Cornell University, high on the Ithaca hills.

Report 35 Missing

A large plane was reported down in Oneida Lake.

At Watkins, where the New York Central viaduct was washed out, 35 persons were reported missing.

Horrell, in Steuben county, was under water when Canisteo creek swept over its banks. Food was being taken to stranded families by city trucks.

In Rochester, damage was estimated at $500,000. Residents paddled about the streets in canoes and rafts.

A whole series of storms lashed Ithaca in deadly succession. Cascadilla and Six-Miles creeks roared out of their bounds and buried the business section under six feet of water.

Whole sections of pavement were washed out. Tons of rock thundered down the steeply wooded hillsides, tilting highways. Several motorists were injured. Police, firemen and CCC workers rushed more than 150 injured persons to the drill hall of the Cornell university R. O. T. C., where a first aid station was set up. Whole families were reported missing.

Do Paul Reverse

State troopers led a Paul Reverse ride ahead of flood waters near Corning, warning families of approaching torrents. Several farmers refused to leave their homes and troopers said loss of life must have been unavoidable as the water reached depths of six to seven feet in a few hours.

Business sections of Utica, Glens Falls, rural Greenburgh and Whitney Point, and residential sections of Binghamton were reported to be under water.

The entire valley of the Tioga river was inundated and villagers under an area of several square miles were forced to second stories. At Whitney Point residents fled to the upper floors of the school building. Half a mile of the Lackawanna railroad was swept away. Scores of buses and automobiles were marooned.

TIME TO BALANCE FEDERAL BUDGET IS NOW NEARING

mands that, when such an emergency has passed, sufficient income should be raised both to meet current expenditures and to make substantial reductions in the debt. The time has come to move in this direction.

"Wise Action"
"It would, of course, be unwise to impose tax burdens which would retard recovery. But it would be equally unwise not to call on sources of revenue which would reduce our borrowing and later reduce the national debt without interfering with recovery, and it is my belief that the additional taxes which the president has now recommended falls within this class."

Morganthau laid before the committee a score of schedules of rates, submitted to him by the committee, with estimates of possible yields ranging from a minimum of $118,000,000 to $901,500,000 a year.

Chairman Doughton (D) of North Carolina, of the committee, immediately ruled that the schedules would not be made public.

Morganthau, however, said the inheritance tax schedules would yield from $7,000,000 to $728,000,000; submitted six income tax schedules to raise from $5,000,000 to $25,000,000 a year; three corporation income tax schedules to raise from $67,000,000 to $102,000,000 a year, and said that $39,000,000 a year could be obtained by partially removing the exemption of taxation of dividends received by corporations.

Morganthau Silent

Despite severe Republican questioning, Morganthau refused to recommend a definite tax plan on behalf of the administration, he also refused to say how much revenue is needed to carry out a budget-balancing program.

Rep. Knutson (D) Minnesota, read from President Roosevelt's economy message in which he said that many liberal governments had been wrecked on the rocks of loose finance.

"I'd like for the secretary of treasury to tell us what has arisen since the president's budget message at the beginning of congress, when he said he did not intend to recommend new taxes, to change this position," said Knutson.

Morganthau did not answer. "You imply that the emergency has passed," said Rep. Crowther (R) New York, referring to Morganthau's statement.

"Yes, I think the worst is over," replied Morganthau.

When Crowther asked whether the proposed program would meet current expenditures and permit reductions of the debt, Rep. Sam Hill (D) Washington broke in.

He said that he conceived the tax program to be looking toward balancing of the federal budget.

Morganthau told Knutson that

THACKER GARDENS SCENE OF WEDDING

One of the most colorful weddings, characterized by beautiful simplicity, which has taken place in New Castle this season, was an event of Saturday evening at 6:30, in the gorgeous flower gardens at the Knox avenue home of Mr. and Mrs. B. K. Thacker, when the latter's sister, Martha E. Baker, of Beaver, Pa., became the bride of Thomas A. Chantler, also of Beaver.

The setting was ideal, taking place in the enclosed garden of fragrant shrubs and ornamental trees, before the pergola, which was a mass of bloom, with trellised roses in many colors. In the background, up the garden path, lined on either side with delphiniums, primroses and flowers of every kind, was the arch covered gateway covered with H. watha, Breeze Hill and Mary Wallace roses.

The bride party completed the beautiful picture, the bride charming in a delicate pink lace formal gown designed long, with short jacket, distinguished with puffed sleeves. She carried a gorgeous arm bouquet of Madonna lilies, sweet heart roses, delphinium and baby breath.

She was given in marriage by her father, Michael Baker, of Beaver. Attendants were: Mrs. Donald Ray of Beaver, who wore chartreuse lace, made similar to the bride's gown, and carried an arm bouquet of varied garden blooms; two bridesmaids, Mrs. R. C. Ernest, of Cleveland, her cousin, who wore peach chiffon, and Miss Priscilla Chantler, a sister of the groom, who appeared in a yellow mouseline de soie. They carried arm bouquets of different garden flowers.

Donald Ray of Beaver served as best man, and Dr. R. C. Ernest of Cleveland, was usher. The groom chose a light suit, while the other men in the party were in white flannels, with dark coats, brightened with rosette boutonnieres. Miss Annabel Weigel of West Alliquippa, rendered the bridal chorus, from "Lohengrin" for the processional up the pathway where the bride party was met by the Rev. R. W. Redpath, pastor of College Hill Reformed Presbyterian church, who heard the pretty exchange of vows.

The buffet supper served afterwards, was dainty and as colorful as the rest of the setting. Two long tables arranged under big shade trees, near the wooded section of the grounds, held old fashioned pinch neck bottle of regal lilies, delphinium and baby breath. Wedding cakes were artistically decorated with delicate flowers in pastel colors, blending with the bright colored covers on the many small tables for the guests. Aides were the bride's sister, Miss Mary Baker, of Beaver; Mrs. C. S. Royce, Mrs. W. C. Mecham and daughter, Eleanor, and Mrs. Paul Reynolds of Ellwood City.

Many out of town guests were present, coming from Beaver, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Youngstown, Sharon, State College, Alliquippa and New Castle. Late in the evening, the happy couple departed on an eastern trip, concluding which they will take up their residence, after July 12, in Beaver, Pa.

The bride is a graduate of Slippery Rock State Teachers college and has been an instructor for several years in Alliquippa. The groom is affiliated with the Jones-Laughlin Steel company at Alliquippa. He is the son of William G. Chantler of Beaver.

HORSE AND BUGGY DAYS

"Horse and buggy days" were referred to by the president in a press conference recently.

What's the matter with the "horse and buggy days"? They were pretty good days as we remember them.

In the "horse and buggy" days a boy had a job all staked out for him before he quit school. It was arranged that he go into a bank, or a blacksmith shop, or a print shop, or that he would study law or medicine.

He looked forward to the time when he could "establish himself" in some business. Perhaps he figured on marrying the banker's daughter and moving into the big stone house with the fancy hitching post out in front.

If he didn't have a horse and buggy he could rent one for an afternoon and evening for about $1.50. The rubber-tired rigs and faster horses cost more. Once or twice a month you could show the girl friend a real evening.

Perhaps you stopped for a glass of lemonade, or you took home a pint of ice cream and ate it in the hammock on the front lawn. The parents were always up to see what time you arrived and if you didn't leave by 10:30 some gentle hints were passed.

What was wrong with that, says the Murphysboro Daily Independent, in describing a similar scene. "It was a pleasant, peaceful, prosperous and happy American in the 'horse and buggy' days."

LET 'EM TAX!

A tax on titles of nobility and a new economic ball-and-chain for Cupid are proposed by law, Representative Raymond J. Cannon, Wisconsin Democrat, doing the proposing. Cannon has introduced a bill which would cost any American with $10,000 who marries a foreigner just $10,000. A millionaire, male or female, eschewing the embraces of 100 per cent American assets for wedlock with an alien would have to pay the United States treasury $250,000, for the hymeneal privilege.

Of course, the law, should it ever embellish the statute books, will make no incursions upon the annually recruited army of American countesses, princesses and baronesses. We have all seen the declarations of successive titled husbands to one American heiress that love is all, the bride's fortune nothing to consider. Love, who laughs at locksmiths, will chuckle at the tax collector. Just the same, Mr. Cannon is an old meanie.

SUMMER REST TIME

Do you get a summer vacation? Whatever you say to that, millions of Americans count on their regular summer vacation as much as on three meals a day. They would feel themselves among the earth's down trodden, if it was taken away from them.

If they get too sour about bad roads, travelling conditions, or sloppy cooking on their journeys, they might well think of millions of housewives, broiling over hot stoves, who never get a vacation from January 1 to December 31 of any year. Or let them think of idle workers who have not had regular employment for several years, and to whom the prospect of any more loafing means the denial of the bright hopes with which they started life's weary journey.

People who have a regular job and who are able to get away and afford a rest period at some leafy camp, some welcoming hotel, or who can junket around the country on a trip, have reason for happiness. If they find fault with minor discomforts, they deserve worse trials.

ONCE AGAIN—CRIME DOESN'T PAY

They killed a man and obtained $120. They hoped they would get $1,000 so that two of the girls could open a dancing show. But they found only $120; so they bought a short-wave radio and left Detroit. They didn't need the radio, however, for they were told that the police were on their trail by the police themselves.

A man confesses he murdered Howard Carter Dickinson, prominent New York attorney, and he and three girls are held for the crime. The suspect blandly admits that the main reason he killed the attorney is because he believed it was easier to get away with murder than with robbery. He revived the slogan of John Silver and his fellow sea pirates: "Dead men tell no tales."

The confessed slayer and his companions have realized now that "you can't get away with anything." Some get away with it longer than others, but one usually is caught. The attorney's murderer "enjoyed" his freedom a very short time.

William C. Switzer and his three girl friends will have a long time to reflect on whether crime does or does not pay. The answer is obvious, but unfortunately that obviousness will not deter others from trying to disprove the axiom that "crime does not pay."

BURYING GOLD

There is no metal so mysterious as gold, though in metallurgical terms it may be as simple as iron or aluminum. But it is translated by the needs of appetites of human nature into something more than metal, and the story of the quest for gold, its uses and abuses, is crowded with curiosities and paradoxes.

There is the fact, for instance, that men labor and suffer to dig gold out of the earth and then bury it again in vaults and caves and other hiding places. The treasury department of the United States government is hiding its gold again. It is not considered sufficiently safe in Washington, New York and Philadelphia, though it is guarded by massive walls, steel doors, time locks and armed watchmen. An invading enemy, it is assumed, might find it too easy to steal the nation's gold reserves.

So some of the gold has been moved already to Denver. More of it will soon be transferred to a subterranean vault to be built in the center of an army post in Kentucky. It will be safer there, not because it is surrounded by soldiers but because the Appalachian Mountains must be crossed to reach it.

Another paradox, of course, is that a nation's gold reserves can be raided without aid of armies and navies. The complicated maneuvering of international finance may force gold from its hiding places and drive it over the oceans to be hoarded in other vaults and cellars. That is warfare, too, though it is not fought with bullets and bayonets.

Some people do business without misunderstandings and others trust their memories.

Termites are eating up a court house in Dodge City, Kansas. Wonder if they would be interested in a couple of statesmen who, we feel certain, would make good fodder?

SALUTE THESE PROUD ONES!

Slender, erect, waiting, this man stood at a street corner.

His bearded chin was up, he seemed to be watching the traffic eagerly, watching for a chance to cross the street.

I might not have looked at him again, if I hadn't noticed that he carried a white cane in his hand—and was blind.

So I followed my impulse, stopped, and said:

"Let me help you across."

He turned swiftly, spoke crisply, rejected me.

"No thanks," said he, "I'll make it by myself."

He was almost sharp in his refusal, was almost scornful. . . . What right had I, he seemed to say, to offer help to him? He was blind, yes, but he asked no help from any man. Thank you, yes. It was kind of me to offer my arm, but he needed no help from me or any other man. . . . It was true he could not see, but he had a white stick and two strong legs, and his pride, and he was resolved to be no burden to strangers.

So I nodded, forgetting he could not see my nod, and went my way. I'm not saying that for an instant I wasn't "offended" . . . But in an instant the slight offense I had taken was overwhelmed by pride in my fellow man.

Blind though he was, he had resolved to go his way unhelped. He would not let his blindness be a claim on me, even though I might be eager to accept that claim. He'd earn his way, he'd walk his path. If he could not enjoy sights, he would enjoy sounds. He would be himself, no one else. He would keep his guard up, and drive self-pity away.

I have known other blind men, blind women, who were just like this. Willing to take your help if it is absolutely necessary, but preferring to tap their way across the street alone. . . . Keeping their pride alive, keeping the flame of self-respect burning in their darkness. . . . And a man must lift his hat and salute them as they pass.

EFFUSIVE PERSONALITY INDICATES LACK OF SINCERITY

You may be too effusive when you meet people.

Because your manner lacks sincerity it is bothersome to most everyone.

Why assume something for effect? What personal desire is behind your gushing personality?

It is so evident that you defeat your own purpose.

It is quite apparent that you have designs.

Who wants to claim you as a friend when your acquaintance with him has been so brief?

Only friendship of long duration might warrant your greeting.

Not many would care to be introduced as your friend after such a short acquaintance.

In all groups there are those who force themselves or push themselves forward to meet prominent persons.

Then they become active in presenting others.

The person of prominence, unless he is an office-seeker, is not anxious to meet people in such an indiscriminate manner.

It is a perfunctory procedure in which he has little interest.

He dislikes the enthusiastic individual who subjects him to a tireless formality.

FILIBUSTERING

Once I tried to filibuster:

Tried a host of words to muster Against going out that evening To some symphony event.

And I did my best to balk her, Long I struggled to out-talk her, But I fought a losing battle, And I later dressed and went.

I began to beg the question By discussing indigestion, And I told the way my mother Used to set her griddle cakes;

Told the way she kept the platter On her yellow bowl of batter And described the soothing music That a heated griddle makes.

From that subject I diverted And I feelingly asserted The unhappiest of mortals Are the ones compelled to roam.

"Neither flute," said I, "nor cello Can be soothing to the fellow With the longing and the yearning In his heart to stay at home."

Till too late I tried to hold her With the stories that I told her Of my uncle and the quaintness Of the things he used to tell.

But she said: "Enough you've spoken! Now your filibuster's broken! You are going to the concert!" And I answered: "Very well!" (Copyright, 1935, Edgar A. Guest.)

Great God I ask Thee for no greater gift

Than that I may not disappoint myself;

That in my action I may soar as high

That I may greatly disappoint my friends,

Urge Veto Of Security Bill.
Critics Say It Won't Work.
President Faces Problems.

Central Press
New York Bureau
235 East 45th street

By LESL EICHEL
Central Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, July 8.—President Roosevelt is being urged to veto the Wagner-Lewis social security bill.

Critics (who favor social security legislation) say the bill is unworkable. They assert it is a cruel promise. It must depend on the vagaries of 48 state legislatures.

For persons now unemployed, there are no provisions. That may cause serious unrest.

And it makes no provisions for the white collar workers or the employee of a small business.

In addition, because of an amendment by Senator Bennett Champ Clark of Missouri exempting from the old-age pension sections firms that have private pension plans, there is no legal power to prevent such firms from discharging their employees before they reach the retirement age.

But, worse, the measure may prove to reduce consumption of products instead of increasing them—for both employer and employee are burdened with a tax for an accumulative fund.

SUMMER FOR PLANNING?

President Roosevelt may have to devote the remainder of the summer to recasting his plans to rebuild the American social and economic structure.

Earlier in his administration, advisers urged him to prepare a complete program.

He probably now will have to do so late in his term, and on the defensive, rather than on the offensive.

LEGALLY DEFICIENT

Probably the greatest blow that has befallen President Roosevelt occurred the day prior to his nomination.</

Governor Has Huge Task
Of Disposing Of New Measures

LIQUOR BILLS ARE AWAITING ACTION

(International News Service)
HARRISBURG, July 8.—Governor George H. Earle returned from a brief week end vacation today to face a huge pile of 342 bills on his desk awaiting executive action.

In order to act on all measures by July 22, the deadline, he must approve or reject an average of more than 25 a day.

Among the important measures awaiting his consideration were the new beer and liquor bills, the graduated state income tax and constitutional revision.

Action on the beer bill has been delayed by a growing wave of protests from corner grocery stores and delicatessens which will gradually be forced out of business by its provisions.

Under the new bill they will be classified as distributors and be required to pay license fees of $400 a year and sell not less than 12 bottles of beer at a time.

At present they pay licenses ranging from $37.50 to $150 and can sell as few as four bottles at a time.

Most of the states brewers were understood to favor the bill because they believe it will add taprooms and reduce the number of retailers who now sell beer under the cheaper distributors' licenses.

They point out there are now 12,000 beer distributors in Pennsylvania as compared with about 3,000 in the prohibition era.

The liquor bill provides for return of the old fashioned bar, Sunday club sales, police powers for the board's enforcement agents and one-man liquor stores. The governor was expected to approve it upon receipt of an opinion confirming its constitutionality from the attorney general.

The graduated income tax bill will be tested in the courts after its signature by the governor. It levies a tax ranging from 2 per cent on incomes of $5,000 to 8 per cent on incomes of $100,000 or more a year.

The proceeds, estimated at $300,000 a biennium, are to be used for reduction of the school tax burden on real estate. Because Pennsylvania's constitution provides that all taxes must be levied equally, legality of the bill is in doubt.

Although the constitutional revision bill was drastically altered by the Republican senate, the governor was expected to approve it. The measure opens the way for revision of the state's 60-year-old basic law at a convention in December.

Although the constitutional revision bill was drastically altered by the Republican senate, the governor was expected to approve it. The measure opens the way for revision of the state's 60-year-old basic law at a convention in December.

They are in the courts after its signature by the governor. It levies a tax ranging from 2 per cent on incomes of $5,000 to 8 per cent on incomes of $100,000 or more a year.

The proceeds, estimated at $300,000 a biennium, are to be used for reduction of the school tax burden on real estate. Because Pennsylvania's constitution provides that all taxes must be levied equally, legality of the bill is in doubt.

Missionaries To Leave Ethiopia

Dr. Thomas Lambie, Well
Known In County, Personal
Physician To King

Among the Americans in Ethiopia who are expected to be evacuated in the near future are four Pittsburgh district mission workers, it was said today, most of them known in New Castle. The four are Miss Viola Bayne, a mission nurse at Gore, in the western interior of Ethiopia; Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Kennen of Ben Avon; and Isabel Blair of Washington, Pa.

Dr. Thomas Lambie, personal physician to King Haile Selassie, is now in London with his wife. Dr. Lambie is well known in New Castle and has spoken at Westminster college on numerous occasions. He is expected back in Pittsburgh shortly.

Mail takes six weeks from Addis Ababa, the capital of Ethiopia, and for this reason letters from the missionaries there contain little news that is not weeks old when it reaches here.

The American government apparently considers war with Italy a strong possibility and has urged all missionaries to leave the country before hostilities start.

Will Tell Story
About Kidnaping

First Inside Story Of
Weyerhaeuser Kidnaping
Hunt Will Be Related

(International News Service)
TACOMA, Wash., July 8.—The story of the kidnaping of 9 year old George Weyerhaeuser, the boy's release for $200,000 ransom, and capture of two of his abductors, will be unfolded here tomorrow in federal court by department of justice agents.

The true story of the kidnaping—how the abductors were tracked down after their flight in Idaho with the boy and subsequent return to Spokane, Wash., where the boy was kept in a "house with gables"—will be related by the ace manhunters of the United States.

The testimony of 75 government witnesses will be directed against Mrs. Margaret Waley, 19, one of the accused kidnapers. She is the 19 year old bride of Harmon Metz Waley, 24, who confessed his part in the abduction and is serving 45 years at McNeil Island penitentiary.

He will be called to testify in behalf of his wife. He previously stated she was an innocent, unsuspecting agent of himself and William Mahan, ex-convict and still a fugitive.

An appeal for parents to be frank with their children was made by Rev. Edwin T. Dahlberg, a member of the committee on marriage. Congressmen Differ
On President's Demand
On Guffey Coal Bill

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, July 8.—President Roosevelt's request for passage of the Guffey-Snyder coal bill, despite doubts as to its constitutionality today brought sharp comment from Republicans and vigorous defense from Democratic members of congress.

The president's statement of position, made in a letter to Rep. Sam Hill (D) of Washington, followed failure of Attorney General Homer Cummings to definitely assure a house ways and means subcommittee that the bill is valid.

In his letter the president said that a further court decision on the control of industry by congress would be helpful in charting future policies.

Submit Questions.
Rep. Fish (R) of New York demanded that the president submit constitutional questions to distinguished lawyers.

"Members of congress, like the president, take an oath to uphold and defend the constitution, and they have no right to openly violate the constitution by passing measures presumably unconstitutional," said Fish.

"Why does not the president ask for advice of such great constitutional lawyers, formerly in his own party, as John W. Davis, Newton D. Baker, Bainbridge Colby and Albert C. Ritchie, before trying to jam through congress laws in defiance of the constitution?"

"Obviously there are no sound and experienced constitutional lawyers in the 'new deal' administration or in sympathy with 'new deal' socialistic policies."

Applauds Roosevelt.
Rep. Sabath (D) of Illinois, dean of the house, applauded the president's position as fair and reasonable.

"During my 30 years experience in congress we never considered important legislation in the interest of the worker, or even business, when the question of constitutionality was not raised," said Sabath.

"If we had listened to the express-

Introduces Bill To Cut Down
Interest On Improvement
Certificate

When council convened in the city building today Director of Finance Albert A. Hoyland introduced a bill which, if adopted, he declared, will result in considerable saving on interest charges.

WOULD ISSUE
BONDS INSTEAD

At present the city, he declared, has outstanding a considerable amount of Improvement certificates which are liens against abutting properties. The city pays six percent on each certificate.

According to Hoyland, the city would call them in and issue bonds which would also be liens against abutting properties. However, the rate of interest would be less than now paid.

The measure as introduced reads: "Authorizing the sale or exchange of refunding bonds of the city, issue of 10-1/2, as of their date, and the acceptance and payment in exchange thereof of Improvement certificates of the city, authorizing the deposit of all such Improvement certificates in the sinking fund and for the re-exchange of the same upon the decree of any court of competent jurisdiction that these Improvement certificates are not direct obligations of the city or that the said refunding bonds are not a legal obligation of the city."

The foregoing proposal was to have been put forward a year or more ago but did not take place. Instead, the city paid the interest on Improvement certificates, the time limit of which was about to expire, for the purpose of keeping them in good standing.

According to Finance Director Hoyland the city has outstanding more than $200,000 worth of Improvement certificates.

Ready To Start Lobbying Probe

House Rules Committee Is Ready To Shift
Charges

PROBE METHODS
TO BE DETERMINED

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, July 8.—With the senate considering a searching inquiry into all phases of lobbying, the house rules committee was ready today to shift serious charges lodged against administration officials and power interests in their battle over the utility holding company bill.

Activities of President Roosevelt's personal aides in connection with the utilities measure and alleged wire-tapping by power lobbyists are to be considered immediately by the house investigators.

The committee will adopt a method of procedure before summoning witnesses. Members indicated that among the first to be called for testimony will be Thomas Corcoran and Benjamin Cohen, new deal attorneys who drafted the bill, former Rep. West of Ohio, congressional liaison officer for the president, and Emil Hurja, patronage adviser.

Corcoran was accused by Rep. Brewster (R) of Maine of threatening withdrawal of federal funds from the Passamaquoddy tidal project unless he voted for the holding company "death sentence."

West, Cohen and Hurja frequented congressional cloakrooms constantly while the legislation was under consideration by the house.

Charges that congressional telephones had been tapped during the hectic struggle over the bill were made by Rep. Rankin (D) of Mississippi, supporter of the president's power program.

Rankin announced he had placed his charges before the department of justice.

Rankin contended utility lobbyists intercepted nearly every important message on the holding company question.

The committee also intends to hear testimony by Rep. Hoepfel (D) of California who informed the house recently that his district would receive increased federal relief funds in return for his favorable vote on the "death sentence."

Meanwhile, Senators Clark (D) of Missouri and Norris (R) of Nebraska, will ask the senate to approve an investigation of lobbying on all legislation considered during the current session.

Attack British Government For Peace Proposal

(BULLETIN)

(International News Service)
LONDON, July 8.—The British government was subjected to a new attack today for proposing to cede a strip of British Somaliland to Abyssinia as the basis for settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian dispute.

Although Premier Mussolini flatly rejected the proposal, the British government indicated it had not abandoned hope of its eventual acceptance, and the cabinet was hampered in the house of commons by members questioning legality of the move.

Gets About Face
Sir Arnold Wilson, conservative, one of several members who attacked the government for its proposal, finally succeeded in getting the colonial office to about-face on its stand.

Malcolm MacDonald, colonial minister, announced a change in the British attitude toward the territory in question, declaring it is merely a question of time before the British empire over which the king exercises full sovereignty.

Previously, there had been considerable criticism on the grounds British Somaliland was considered an integral part of the empire.

Many persons objected to "indiscriminate" cession of British territory even though such action might prove effective in averting war.

Sir William Davidson, conservative, suggested Abyssinia has "forfeited her rights as member of the league of nations" by her failure to abolish slavery as promised upon her admission in 1923.

Foreign Secretary Sir Samuel Hoare said it was difficult to express an opinion regarding efficacy of measures to suppress slavery and stated any complaints should be addressed to the league of nations.

Sir Samuel ignored Davidson's assertion Abyssinians recently raided British colonies for slaves.

Shenango Township Asks Tax Payment

City Makes No Move Toward Honoring Request Of School Board

Practically no consideration was given by Council during the meeting at City hall today to the request of Shenango Township school directors for the payment of taxes on ground the city owns in Shenango township. The board presented two bills, one for $432.00 on a valuation of $21,000 and another for $1,036.00 on a valuation of $51,800. The city owns the golf course, Cascade Park and Cunningham Park. Solicitor White has in the past informed council that the municipality does not need pay taxes on ground it owns in the township. He requested the bills be referred to him which was done.

Lawrence Sees Earle As Likely Candidate For President In '40

(International News Service)
HARRISBURG, July 8.—Jot these items down in your political future notebook. . . Democratic State Chairman David L. Lawrence thinks Gov. George H. Earle is the outstanding Democratic presidential candidate in the country at the present time. . . That, of course, does not mean or the 1936 election. . . All good Democrats are looking to 1940 by his time. . . Lawrence is not trying to start a boom for Earle. . . It is just his opinion that Governor Earle is the "most liberal-minded state executive in the country."

The other side of the same picture. . . In his inaugural, Governor Earle said the governor's office was the realization of his political ambitions, not a stepping stone to higher honors. . . The executive recalled that phrase the other day after he allowed his personal conscience to dictate a decision he knew was politically unpopular. . . "Maybe people will believe I meant what I said when I said this office wasn't a stepping stone," he remarked.

Like Washington, Pennsylvania's capital city is beginning to run short of suitable real estate to house the increasing governmental functions resulting from the new deal. . . Because there wasn't a place in town that could be rented, Edward N. Jones was obliged to take his works progress staff to the farm show building. . . He hopes to be able to move downtown into headquarters now used by the relief board after the program gets under way and there is less work for the relief board. . . The state now rents several offices throughout the business district. . . The liquor board is housed in the entire eight story Claster building. . . The milk board has downtown offices. . . The relief board has two buildings, one the old state printery and the other privately rented.

New state automobiles aren't being dressed up in the familiar Arizona brown which has been seen often on the highways. . . The new machines get a state seal decorated onto the two front doors. . . Underneath is the legend: "For official use only." . . The cars are the conventional stock color.

The story about the cake sent to Governor Earle which was refused to state police to be opened because somebody thought it might be a bomb made a good yarn. . . But state police say they open a parcel sent to some state official on an average of once a month. . . Most of them are packages for the governor, but not all of them. . . Nothing sinister has been uncovered yet, anyway.

Governor Earle has begun to go to work on the stack of bills before him for action. . . But as yet he hasn't gotten into the stride he must hit to dispose of all the measures by July 22, the deadline. . . When the legislature adjourned, the executive had to sign an average of 14 bills a day to clean up the pile. . . The daily average is now up to 25 or thereabouts.

Tourist Camp Is Under Quarantine
Case Of Scarlet Fever In Camp Just Outside Of Butler
BUTLER, Pa., July 8.—With the temperature hovering around the 90 mark, state troopers perform sentry duty here at the tourist camp, situated just west of the fairgrounds. . . More than 225 tourists are on the fourth day of a 10-day quarantine invoked when Bridget Costello, 2, daughter of James Costello of Memphis, Tenn., was taken ill with scarlet fever. . . The 10-day quarantine was made retroactive as of June 30 and at its expiration, township health officers will insist upon the tourists leaving the state and going to their respective homes in the south.

The 225 travelers hail from the following states: Indiana, Missouri, Texas, Tennessee, Georgia, Oklahoma and Mississippi. . . The camp is roped off as a safeguard to outsiders and the troopers keep careful watch on those coming near or for any attempting to leave. . . Some of the younger members of the group were principals in a triple wedding here Saturday.

Additional testimony was taken before Judges R. Lawrence Hildebrand and James A. Chambers on Saturday in the disbarment proceedings against Attorney M. J. Kraus of Ellwood City. The new testimony concerned some money collected in a damage suit which it is averred was not handled properly by Mr. Kraus.

The wholesale beer distributors have been calling county treasurer W. O. Pitts concerning their fees for the coming year. The new fee is $400 but they have already paid their 1935-36 licenses as of June 1. Under the Pennsylvania constitution ex-post facto legislation is prohibited and this would seem to be such legislation. It might apply to any person taking out a distributor license after the passage of the act but it seems doubtful that it would apply to those who have. It also represents a 1000 percent increase for some of the distributors who paid around $40 for their current license.

Girls Win Honors In Swim Tests At Camp East Brook

Two of the important swimming tests at Camp East Brook brought honors to a group of the young ladies. On Friday night the following girls successfully passed the difficult American Red Cross swimmers' test: Beverly Groden, Dotie Wallace, Jessie Offerdinger, Eleanor Eckles and Eleanor Berry. Another group of girls, not so far advanced, passed the American Red Cross beginners' swim test: Carolyn Cosel, Jean Young, Diana Elder, Roberta Elder, Gloria Levin, Betsy Matthews, Miriam Thomas, Caddy Wallace, Nancy Leonhart. Last Wednesday a swimming meet was conducted at the camp, and the winners, Joanne Preston, of Group 1; Eleanor Berry, of Group 2; Caddy Wallace, of Group 3, and Sally Ann Rogers, of Group 4, were presented with small felt Camp East Brook letters, to be sewn to their bathing suits.

STATE READY TO START WORK-RELIEF

First Projects Are Announced

Most Of Work In First Installment Is Manual Labor

LAWRENCE COUNTY PROJECTS $37,178

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, July 8.—

Pennsylvania today was ready to start the wheels turning under the huge federal works program with 275 projects totaling $3,591,233, enough to give a year's work to each of 3,743 men now on relief.

Before work may be started, the projects must be approved by federal officials to whom they were submitted today by Edward N. Jones, Pennsylvania works progress administrator. Jones said final action was anticipated before the end of the week.

Seeks "White Collar" Jobs

Pointing out the first batch of projects involved almost 100 per cent manual labor, Jones urged submission of more "white collar" and women's projects in order to give work to all the 350,000 employables now on state relief rolls. "White collar" projects, because they involve small expenditures for materials, provide work for more men for the same amount of money than do heavy construction projects.

The first schedule of projects calls for approximately $2,700,000 of the $250,000,000 or more Pennsylvania expects to receive under the $4,000,000 federal program. Local governments sponsoring the projects have agreed to supply $908,000.

Of the 16 counties represented in the first schedule, Luzerne led the list with applications for federal grants totaling $556,467 and representing 772-man-years of work.

Lawrence Jobs $37,178

Other counties were: Beaver, $63,890, 55 man-years; Blair, $18,376, 27 man-years; Cambria, $83,218, 117 man-years; Clearfield, $36,213, 60 man-years; Erie, $95,049, 124 man-years; Fayette, $112,600, 174 man-years; Lackawanna, $148,049, 237 man-years; Lawrence, $37,178, 52 man-years; Lehigh, $198,529, 281 man-years; Montgomery, $96,839, 139 man-years; Northampton, $203,555, 283 man-years; Philadelphia, $166,190, 205 man-years; Washington, $35,288, 50 man-years; and Westmoreland, $164,210, 261 man-years.

Referring to the large amount of manual work, Jones said: "It clearly demonstrates the necessity for every community in the state cooperating with the works progress administration to develop projects that will absorb the unemployed progressional and 'white collar' workers and the women's groups.

"There are approximately 350,000 employables who must be taken off the relief rolls. We have the money to give them work if the local governments and communities come through with the right kind of projects."

Several hundred other applications are under consideration by Jones' staff which took over administration of works relief from the state emergency relief board. A skeleton staff has been working night and day preparing the projects for submission to Washington, Jones said.

Huge Shipments Of Milk Are Made From Mercer Co.

(Special To The News)

MERCER, July 8.—The recent publication that 20,000 gallons of milk is shipped daily from this county to Pittsburgh and Cleveland may seem a large amount until it is considered that the county cattle population totals near 40,000 head. From the well known dairying interests of the county it is a safe estimate that 80 per cent of this total would be milk cows.

There are three rallying centers for dairy interests in the county: Grove City, Greenville and Sandy Lake.

From each of these large shipments are made in milk and dairy products.

At each of these named places are milk plants. At Grove City is the outstanding experimental creamery of the federal government. The magnitude of the business in a year's time from this dairy shipment can be easily summed.

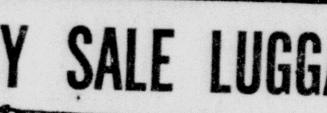

Eighty-six per cent of the farmers voting in the referendum were in favor of continuing the wheat reduction program.

Surprise For Ghost.
The Great Helen.
Mussolini's Fighting.
The Great Pasture.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

FOR THIS much thanks. The King of Ethiopia, having a fight on his hands, said to himself:

"The customary thing is to send for Uncle Sam, and let him take charge of the fight, and pay the bills."

Accordingly, Washington was notified in diplomatic language: "Come on over."

President Roosevelt said no. We take the liberty of rewriting the message that he sent through Secretary Hull to the Ethiopian king: "You are in the League of Nations, supposed to protect its members from unjust attack. Tell your story to the League. We have some things of our own to attend to over here."

That message would surprise the ghost of Woodrow Wilson, who will please 99 per cent of Americans.

HELEN WILLIS MOODY beats the other Californians, Helen Jacobs, and wins the women's world championship at Wimbledon. What a strange thing is power, located, according to wise ones, near the base of the brain in the back of the skull. Somewhere down there, in the curious dark cortex that covets the white, cold mass of brain tissue, Helen Willis Moody found energy and will power invincible. She lost the second set, 3 to 6, had a hard uphill fight in the third and final set, and WON, 7 to 5.

THIS REMARKABLE California girl has won the world's championship for women at Wimbledon seven times. What a girl! What a marvel, what a credit to the United States and its people. The highly developed backbeats is conspicuous among Americans.

California Chamber of Commerce, from the northern tip to the door of Mexico should print on its stationery:

"You want to know about California sunlight? Look at Helen Willis Moody."

MUSSOLINI, who believes in doing things himself, was piloting a plane toward Salerno yesterday when lightning struck the plane, hitting the wireless antenna. The radio operator fainting, Mussolini an indignant glance in the direction of the thunder, and took the plane safely to earth. That lightning probably said to itself:

"I hit the wrong man. That news will interest Ethiopia. If you can't kill Mussolini with bullets that have been fired at him, and if lightning itself can't hurt him, what will hurt him?"

FIFTY YEARS ago Louis Pasteur injected into the veins of little Joseph Meister, in Paris, his serum against rabies. The serum, then used for the first time on a human being, saved the child's life. The world honors the great Frenchman, Pasteur, savior of lives in every country, savior of French vineyards. France should build to his honor two statues for every one built to honor conquerors that killed their fellow men.

WHEN LEGREE cracked his whip, Uncle Tom and the others jumped. Physical slavery is gone, but in Louisiana when Senator Long cracks his whip, the Legislators jump and obey. Last Friday in 45 minutes, they passed through the legislative committee 26 bills that Senator Long had ordered passed. —That is quick work—less than two minutes to a bill.

Senator Long, who has that "personality" declared by Goethe to be the greatest thing in man, does not think it necessary for Legislators to study bills after HE has approved them.

What would be the result if each state gradually should develop its individual dictator? That used to be the situation in what is now the Kingdom of Italy.

SOMEBODY IMAGINED that Henry Ford was building at Dearborn an automobile with a Diesel engine to sell for $300, run 70 miles an hour, use no batteries, travel 30 miles on 6 cents worth of oil. The imaginary idea was to compete with this new cheap Japanese car to be sold next January.

Universal Service says the Ford company denies knowing anything about this car.

HOWEVER, SOMEBODY will build some kind of a very low-priced car that will run, and create millions of new buyers of more expensive cars. It may or may not be a Diesel engine.

Henry Ford may do it, Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., may do it, Walter Chrysler may do it, or they may all do it the same year or some new man may do it. Ten million families in the United States have no automobile, which is all wrong.

THE WISE THING now is to buy a car, without waiting for any "perhaps," and then the heaven that so marvelous a product can be got for so low a price, bearing in mind that the man who has an automobile is like a bird with wings: Man without an automobile, not a man, but a hoptoad.

EVERYBODY KNOWS what Japan intends to do with China. The question is what does Russia intend to do with Japan, if and when she can? Will Russia say to Japan, "You carve up the big Chinese goose and we'll divide." Or will such instances as a recent shooting of a Russian sentry by Japanese soldiers who dragged away his body leaving only a pool of blood, annoy Russia too much for any goose-feast? Recent events indicate Russia's will to "endure" Japan for the present.

LEARNED EDITORS who know how far in advance, and how carefully, Japan prepares, might get a book called "The Puppet State of Manchukuo," printed by the China United Press, at 299 Zuchuan Road in Shanghai. Turn to Page 205 and read the memorial address to the Japanese throne in 1927 by Gen. Baron Tanaka, then Premier of Japan. This memorial is said never to have been made public in Japan, but China got a copy.

You admire Japan's thoroughness when you see how carefully Premier Tanaka prepared for the emperor an outline of the desirable features of Manchuria since taken over and square miles of territory, a laborious, useful and submissive population of 28,000,000 all able to raise soy beans for Japan, and fight for Japan. All resources were tabulated in minute detail.

The famous will left by the great Russian Emperor is said to have been invented after he died, but this memorial of Premier Tanaka to the Japanese throne is real.

Roosevelt Faces Second Big Test

House Takes Up Extension Operations For TVA, Opponents Are Active

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, July 8.—President Roosevelt's leadership faced its second crucial test in two weeks today as the house took up the bill extending operations of the TVA.

Defeated overwhelmingly in his fight for the holding company "repeal" sentence, the president sought a comeback by obtaining enactment of the original administration TVA measure instead of the modified bill reported by the house military affairs committee.

The committee approved a compromise proposal which virtually forces the TVA to operate under the same conditions imposed on private utility companies.

Opponents Active
The compromise bill was drafted after foes of government power operations clocked the committee's consideration of the administration plan.

TVA opponents, headed by Rep. May (D) of Kentucky will resist all moves to restore the original provisions to the substitute measure. "The bill before the house is by long odds the lesser of two evils," May said.

What would be the result if each state gradually should develop its individual dictator? That used to be the situation in what is now the Kingdom of Italy.

SOMEBODY IMAGINED that Henry Ford was building at Dearborn an automobile with a Diesel engine to sell for $300, run 70 miles an hour, use no batteries, travel 30 miles on 6 cents worth of oil. The imaginary idea was to compete with this new cheap Japanese car to be sold next January.

New Castle And Lawrence County Boys At Camp Meade

START MONTH'S TRAINING WORK

(Special To The News)

FORT MEADE, Md., July 8.—Among the 2600 young men camped in Fort George G. Meade, Maryland, are 23 from New Castle and Lawrence county.

The camp opened July 2 and after being assigned to a company each applicant was given a physician examination and then given clothing. The examination and issuing of clothing and equipment took up the first day until evening when the whole body of CMTC entrainees assembled on a drill field for their first formation. Colonel Taylor, commanding officer of the 394th infantry training the young men, was in charge of the assembly. A trophy was awarded to Captain G. Philip Jung for army extension course work in the past year. Talks were also given on the aims and high ideals of the CMTC.

The regular schedule was followed Wednesday, training in the morning and free time for sports in the afternoon.

Thursday, being a national holiday, there was no training period, the whole time being given over to sports and policing of the tents and camp. A 48-gun salute promptly at noon celebrated the 150th anniversary of the birth of this nation. This was also carried out at all other army posts as well as ships of the U. S. Navy.

Colonel H. L. Landers, Third Corps Area CMTC procurement officer, administered the oath to the entire regiment Saturday morning.

Fort George G. Meade is located half way between Washington and Baltimore, the lights of which can be seen from the camp at night. To take care of the CMTC over 400 squad tents have been set up in lines near one-half mile long. It is also on the direct airplane route between the two cities and gives the campers a chance to see many planes.

The mail for boys in camp should be addressed to the boys' company, CMTC, Fort George G. Meade, Md.

A list of trainees from Lawrence county and the companies to which they have been assigned follows: Roy Warnock, B. A. J. Savick, E. Edmund Gillett, G. Lloyd Lee, H. Fred McComie, H. Young Man Attempting To Board Freight At Akron, O., Slips And Falls

Tigers-Cards Keep Pace With New York Teams

Tigers Chalk Up Tenth Straight Victory To Stay Close To New York Yanks

By LES CONKLIN

NEW YORK, July 8.—The St. Louis Cardinals and Detroit Tigers, 1934 champions, had served additional notice on the two league-leading New York teams today that they will be in there battling for another slice of world series melon until the last towel is lifted.

While the speeding Tigers were chalking up their tenth straight triumph, the Dean boys regained their 1934 form by hurling the Cards to a double win over Cincinnati, 9 to 4 and 5 to 1. Fifteen thousand St. Louis fans, booing Dizzy because of his latest run-in with Manager Frankie Frisch, changed their jeers to cheers as the megaphone man, appearing in a relief role, led the Reds to three hits in 4-2-3 innings while his mates came from behind to win. Brother Paul yielded only seven hits in the nightcap.

Detroit Wins
Detroit defeated the Browns 12 to 5 despite heroic slugging by Julius Solters, who drove in all five St. Louis runs by clouting a home run in each of his first three trips to the plate.

Both New York teams also won. Carl Hubbell of the Giants subdued Brooklyn, 9 to 2, for his tenth victory, as Mel Ott smashed his 18th homer, with the bases full. Lou Gehrig clubbed his 11th circuit swat, also with the bases loaded, as the Yankees slaughtered Washington 11 to 1 behind Johnny Broaca's six-hit pitching.

Two extended streaks were snapped as Cleveland and the White Sox split a twin bill. In the opener Ted Lyons blanked the Indians 2 to 0 for Chicago's seventh straight win and Cleveland's eighth consecutive defeat. The Indians staggered through to a 7 to 6 decision in the nightcap.

Mahoning To Play Hillsville

Mahoning A. A. will play Hillsville in a twilight baseball game at 5:45 p. m. today on the E. & A. Field. It will be the first home game for Mahoning and a large crowd is anticipated. On Friday the Mahoning team will meet the Grays of Alliquippa.

All-Star Game At Cleveland

Expect Gate Of Over 85,000 To Witness Big League All-Star Spectacle

By ED PRELL
International News Service Sports Writer

CLEVELAND, O., July 8.—Baseball's mid-season spectacle, the annual Major League all-star battle, a show staged with the flair and dash to do a Barnum credit, was ready for the 85,000 expected to see it this afternoon.

Gates were thrown open early and there was a mad rush for the 10,933 bleacher tickets and for admittance on the field, limited to 5,000, which was roped off. Another 69,000 have purchased reserved tickets for the conflict at 1:30 o'clock. (E. S. T.)

Harder-Schumacher

Mel Harder of the Cleveland Indians, last year's hero, and grim-faced Hal Schumacher, the college-bred star of the New York Giants, were overnight selections to start on the mound.

The weather predicted for this all-star game was "fair and moderate." Last night's light rain caused a scare but the skies cleared later. In event of a postponement today, the game will be played tomorrow, schedule makers having taken care of this emergency by making it also an off day in the league races.

Both manager Frankie Frisch of the Nationals, and Mickey Cochran, head man of the American league forces, delayed announcing their official lineups. Cochran wired baseball writers he would start Harder, the 25-year old Nebraska on the mound. The big cornhusker saved last year's game by pitching one-hit baseball in the final five innings to give his team a 9 to 7 victory.

In the 1933 game at Comiskey Park, Babe Ruth's two-run homer gave the winning blow, the final score being 4-2, so the National leaguers are looking for the first triumph today.

Walker Selected
It wasn't until late last night that the National League selected their fifth hurler. He is Bill Walker, veteran southpaw of the Cardinals, giving the world champions six players on the all-star squad. Ford Frick, president of the National League, announced Walker's name after conferring with Frisch and getting the permission of Will Harridge, American league president.

Harridge was the only baseball personality absent. He is ill in Chicago. All the other bigwigs were here, including Kenesaw Mountain Landis, baseball's 11th commissioner. Landis' night gave him his permission for placing the overflow on the field of the stadium.

Maxie Schmeling Defeats Paolino

Schmeling Agrees To Meet Joe Louis In New York City In September

By WALTER DIETZEL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

BERLIN, July 8.—After cautiously pounding his way to a 12 round decision over Paolino Uzcudun, Max Schmeling today had "practically agreed" to meet Joe Louis in New York in September, his manager, Joe Jacobs said.

Jacobs was keeping after Schmeling all day today trying to get him to sign on the dotted line.

"I explained to Max that it's the only logical fight now, and judging by his form, I think he'll win it," Jacobs said.

Crowd Of 50,000
Fifty thousand watched the ex-champion beat Paolino for the third time yesterday. Schmeling concentrated on piling up points, and trying to keep out of harm's way in anticipation of the Louis fight.

He ran into danger in the sixth round, however, when Paolino caught him with a heavy swing below the belt that nearly knocked him down. Physicians said today that Schmeling was not hurt.

Newspaper men gave Paolino the seventh round, called three even, and the rest were Max's, but not by a very wide margin.

The 36 year old Basque, crouching and bobbing around the ring, made it hard for Schmeling to find his target during the first couple of rounds, but the German loosened up in the second and third with a barrage of rights to the head that opened a cut over Paolino's left eye.

Paolino Warned
Max slowed up in the eventful sixth and was taking it easy when Paolino hit him to the left of the stomach, six inches below the belt. Schmeling winced and the battle was suspended while Max was treated, but Paolino was allowed to continue after a warning.

Swinging wildly with both hands, Paolino lashed out in the next frame, the only one he won, but Max was quick on the defensive and the Basque's rally was ineffective.

Lowenthal Faced With Huge Task

Railroad Investigator Trying To Find Out Where Water Is In Stocks

LOOKED UPON AS CAPABLE LAWYER

Central Press
Washington Bureau
1900 S Street

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, July 8.—Max Lowenthal, recently named by Chairman Burton K. Wheeler of the senate's interstate commerce committee as chief investigator in the committee's probe of railroad finances, starts on a task compared with which Hercules' job of sprucing up the Aegian stables was a trifling undertaking.

The difficulty confronting an inquisitor into the exploitation of the public by a few big bankers and speculators, by means of the national transportation system, is not so much that the figures run high into the billions; it began so long ago that the original operators are dead, their children are dead, many of their grandchildren are dead, their estates have been liquidated for a generation or two—and what's to be done about it?

Charles Kelly of the staff of Labor, the railroad brotherhoods' organ, and a deep student of transportation history, mentions records indicating that rolling stock used in moving troops at the time of the Mexican war, is not yet paid for; it was bought with borrowed money, and these debts, merged with many others, simply have been carried alone to the present, through successive bond issues.

BONDS CAUSE WORRY
Railroad bonds are a graver worry than railroad stocks to the senate investigators.

It generally is recognized that there are not many railroads in which the holders of their stocks have any considerable equity above the value of the lines' various indebtedness.

If the stockholders lose, painful as it may be, only they will be the sufferers.

The bonds, however, are held by savings banks and insurance and trust companies throughout the nation; a default upon any considerable proportion of THEM would be a disaster of immeasurable ramifications.

WATER STILL IN
Railroad executives contend that much of the water in railroad securities was squeezed out during the depression of the 1890's. But the 1890's are 40 years ago. The Wheeler committee suspects, from superficial inquiry, that a deal of water has been pumped in since then, not to mention a vast quantity that escaped being squeezed out in that era.

PLAN CONSIDERED DOUBTFUL

Nor does this take into account increased competition with automotive and air transportation.

This competition, Transportation Co-ordinator Joseph B. Eastman believes, should be brought within the jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission, to be equalized. So-ordinator Eastman, by general agreement, is one of the ablest and most conscientious officials in public life, "but," said Senator James Couzens, senior Republican member of the upper congressional chamber, in an interview I recently had with him, "Joe has been too long a government official. He has become a bureaucrat. His scheme is impracticable. Imagine every owner of a little truck, compelled to consult the Interstate Commerce Commission, and obtain a certificate of public necessity—on the same basis as a railroad! It wouldn't work."

A CAPABLE LAWYER
Investigator Lowenthal has, then, a stiff task ahead of him. Max is a youngish New York lawyer. He is said to have a corporate practice but is a first-class liberal. For some reason, certain practitioners for reactionist tendencies seem to develop liberal tendencies. I knew him in Washington when he was secretary for President Hoover's Wickesham anti-crime commission.

He knew it was a fraud; he resigned. JOHNSTOWN, Pa., July 8.—Arrangements were completed today to bury Lee T. Shannon, 64, president of the Johnstown Traction company, who died last night, in Altoona. Shannon, a native of Harrisburg, died of peritonitis.

Parents Join Boys For Camp Worship Sunday Afternoon

Camp Rentz Vesper Speaker Is Rev. Knippel; Day Quiet One

(Special To The News)
CAMP FRED L. RENTZ, July 8. Parents of the Camp Rentz boys and Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Rentz were guests at the camp's vesper services on Sunday afternoon at which the Rev. J. George Knippel, pastor of the Emmanuel Evangelical association church here, spoke.

Frank Baldwin presided at the service and G. Lewis led the music.

The worship period brought to a close the first Sunday the boys have spent in camp. The day began with a general cleaning of all cabins, a dip in the cool water and Sunday school and then a dinner at noon.

Saturday was a busy day with a lively "hare and hound" chase starting things. Bob Meermans, Glenn Gordon, Ed. Pritchard, Jay Melvin, Jack Butz and Dennis Royton won the hunt prize. In the afternoon there was a track meet, participated in by the entire camp. A night program was held with the boys playing an inter-cabin baseball game. A mock court trial was also held with Counselor Frank Baldwin, judge; Dean Pollock, sheriff; Dick Cramer and John Butler, attorneys. Tapes quieted the camp ground at 10 sharp.

The camp enjoyed a council fire at twilight last night, following which taps were heard.

Mrs. Vanderbilt Is Taken By Death

New York Society Mourns Death Of Mrs. Graham Fair Vanderbilt

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, July 8.—New York Society today mourned the death of Mrs. Graham Fair Vanderbilt, 68, former wife of William K. Vanderbilt, 2nd and long one of the ranking social leaders of the metropolis. Mrs. Vanderbilt died of pneumonia after an illness of nine weeks. Funeral services will be conducted at the home tomorrow morning with only relatives and intimate friends attending.

Death was caused by thermal pneumonia, but it was the tragic demise of her playboy son, William K. Vanderbilt, 3rd, in an auto crash at Ridgeland, N. C., in 1933, that cut short her once glamorous career. Grief gradually weakened her away. Young William had been almost the sole interest in her life since she divorced William K. Vanderbilt 2nd in Paris, May 30, 1927.

USE ELASTIC

If your small son has started to wear shirts instead of the button-on blouse and has a hard time keeping his knickers up, place a piece of elastic inside the knickers, having the elastic a snug fit around the waist and tuck here and there to the knicker band. It works out splendidly.
